Searching for Housing Overview

Looking for housing can be a long yet exciting process. You might wonder where to start. You can start by connecting yourself with a realtor or doing your own research. A realtor is someone who works in the housing and real estate industry, whose purpose is to help people find housing. If you opt to research on your own, you might want to use resources such as Trulia, Apartments.com, Redfin, and Zillow. (Fox Chase Cancer Center does not take responsibility for the accuracy of the content on third party websites.)

Whether you're looking for a house or an apartment, the Philadelphia area has much to offer in an urban and suburban setting.

Decide which factors are most important to you.

Location, Commute, and Transportation Access

Are you searching for a place to live near the Cancer Center? Location and commute is one of the main factors people prioritize when looking for housing. This often is based on convenience, whether you have a car, and the safety and amenities of a neighborhood.

If you want to live near Fox Chase and don't have a car, there are many options that are walking distance (less than 4 miles) from the Center, which are outlined on pages 7 – 19.

If you have a car and want to live in the suburbs, you might consider surrounding neighborhoods such as Rockledge, Cheltenham, Jenkintown, and Mayfair.

If you want to live in the city, especially without a car, many opt to walking distance (within a 20-minute walk) from Gray 30th St. Station, Suburban Station, or Jefferson Station. All of these have regional rail stations including the Fox Chase train line. Neighborhoods in Center City, Midtown, University City, or Rittenhouse Square are closest proximity to the stations.

When looking at location, you might also look at factors like safety and police access, nearby stores and grocery stores, demographics, cleanliness, school rankings, and the overall popularity of the neighborhood.

Amenities

When searching for an apartment, you may want to consider amenities like an in-unit dishwasher, laundry, air conditioning/heating, WiFi, storage space, security measures, elevator access, parking, maintenance services, delivery options, pet and smoking policies, recreational spaces such as lounges, gyms, or pools, and nearby shopping.

Affordability

The cost and affordability of housing is another key factor to prioritize when apartment hunting. Be sure to assess your financial situation, including your salary and any other expenses beyond the apartment deposits. Keep in mind that some apartments may require a move-in fee, security deposit, application fee, and advance rent payments. These are important details to verify.

Here is a cost of living calculator for the Philadelphia region.

Furnished vs Unfurnished

Furnished apartments are often in high demand as you are likely to come across more unfurnished options. To save on costs, consider renting furniture, shopping at thrift stores, or exploring affordable options at stores like IKEA or HomeGoods.

Landlord

Another important factor to consider is the reliability and reputation of the landlord or management company. Researching this in advance can help you avoid future problems and ensure that you can trust the terms of your lease.

What is Coventry House?

Fox Chase Cancer Center sublets units at Coventry House for the use of incoming trainees/employees (postdocs, graduate students), summer students and visitors' scientists, and sometimes patients and their families for short-term stays. It is especially useful for international trainees to give them a place to stay while establishing themselves in the US and seeking permanent housing.

Incoming trainees can secure a lease of up to 3-months for a furnished 1-bedroom, 1-bathroom unit which is about a 10-minute walk to the Center.
